WHY UNDERGRADUATE/MASTERS RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM?

- Opportunity for Undergraduate and Masters Students to showcase their ideas and research.
- It gives you an advantage when applying for scholarships or graduate school
- The experience helps confirm if you're pursuing the right career path, or helps you discover a new career path you may not have considered before
- It helps you get involved on campus and connected to your university
- It provides an automatic introduction to peers from other institutions
- The process develops real-world, transferable skills that you can use on the job, including advanced problem-solving skills and career-specific behaviors

WHY DOCTORAL CONSORTIUM?

The objective of the doctoral consortium is to help doctoral students, candidates and junior faculty achieve optimal result. It provides an opportunity to establish scholarly and professional linkages with colleagues. The consortium is for students that are in the Ph.D. program, although master's level students and early career faculty may also benefit. The consortium provides a setting in which doctoral students and candidates can acquire requisite skills needed for a successful doctoral journey. Issues to be discussed includes but not limited to time management, finding a dissertation/thesis title, choosing a mentor and advisor, the academic profession; professional networking and choosing appropriate conference and journal. The consortium package includes seminars, video presentation, collaborative sessions, and informal interactions.
